

blue and fellows had hardly lined up for practice when the cadets dashed through the gate and began kicking and tossing the ball. Little time was lost in preliminaries. The Army won the toss and won the south goal, with the sun to their backs.

Dean kicked off for the Army and sent the ball across the line. He was called back, being off side, and kicked over. The ball went to Brown, on Yale's 10-yard line, and he was tackled before he had gone ten yards. Brown tried the line on a plunge, but Dean and Greble held the ball for a fair kick on Yale's 43-yard line. Dean then putted and Greble heeled the ball for a fair kick on Yale's 50-yard line.

Army Man Gets Hurt.

Yale kicked off, but Greble ran the ball back to Yale's 40-yard line, where he tackled the ball. He was called back, being off side, and kicked over. The ball went to Brown, on Yale's 10-yard line, and he was tackled before he had gone ten yards. Brown tried the line on a plunge, but Dean and Greble held the ball for a fair kick on Yale's 43-yard line. Dean then putted and Greble heeled the ball for a fair kick on Yale's 50-yard line.

Yale Got the Ball.

Dean's kick was blocked, and Yale got the ball on her own ten yard line. Greble gained three yards on the play, and Coy got two more. Yale was forced to kick, and the Army again got the ball in the center of the field. Philbin heeled the ball for a fair kick on Yale's 50-yard line.

The soldiers were keeping the ball in Yale's territory. Then West Point was penalized fifteen yards for holding. West Point tried a forward pass, but Nadel crashed the ball away from Wood and with a clear head before him ran back five yards and kicked the ball for a fair kick on Yale's 50-yard line.

Then a cold chill was sent down Yale's back as the forward and upfield decided that Nadel and Dean, both of whom were in the line, were not allowed to kick. The ball was taken back to Yale's 40-yard line and the Army was given the ball. A kicking duel followed which ended with the Army having the ball in the center of the field. Philbin heeled the ball for a fair kick on Yale's 50-yard line.

Coy Wins Kicking Duel.

Murphy nuffed Dean's kick and Underwood fell on the ball on Yale's 50-yard line. Dean tried an inside kick, but Coy got the ball fifteen yards away. He tried a double pass on a fake kick, but Coy was tackled before he had gained a yard. Yale was again forced to kick and Dean returned it to the center of the field. Philbin heeled the ball for a fair kick on Yale's 50-yard line.

Unknown Man Leaps From Platform and Is Ground to Pieces.

An unidentified man jumped from the platform of the Twenty-third street subway station in front of a north-bound local train at 8:45 o'clock today and was cut to pieces. Both platforms were crowded at the time and a panic resulted when the motorman, Edward Kruger, brought his train to a stop and jumped out, crying that he had killed a man.

SECOND HALF.

Philbin kicked off and Greble brought the ball back to the Army's 25-yard line. Dean kicked to Yale in the center of the field. Coy kicked out of bounds and it was the Army's ball on their 25-yard line. Dean failed to gain through tackle and then kicked to Coy. Philbin heeled the ball for a fair kick on Yale's 50-yard line.

Murphy gained ten yards on a double pass and this time the Army's team made the necessary distance for a first down. Brides made two punches through the line of it. Dean and the Yale supporters grew jubilant. Coy then took the ball and in two punches made a first down. Philbin heeled the ball for a fair kick on Yale's 50-yard line.

Coy Tackled Quickly.

With the ball in the center of the field, Coy tried a double pass on a fake kick, but was tackled before he had gained a foot. Greble took the ball and sent it to the Army's 25-yard line. Dean failed to gain through tackle and then kicked to Coy. Philbin heeled the ball for a fair kick on Yale's 50-yard line.

After another interchange of kicks, Yale got the ball on their 25-yard line and tried the line plunging only to fail. The kicking duel was renewed, with Coy again kicking to the Army. Philbin heeled the ball for a fair kick on Yale's 50-yard line.

Had Only a Nickel.

He also carried a pocketbook of peculiar pattern which contained only a five-cent piece and a snuff-box in which there was a small quantity of snuff. The body was so mutilated that the features were unrecognizable.

MIDDIES WON IN ONE SIDED GAME FROM OLD RIVALS

Defeats Lehigh by Score of 16 to 0, Changing Players During Game.

THE LINE-UP.

Lehigh: ...
Middie: ...

(Special to The Evening World.)

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 17.—The Middies defeated their old rivals, the Lehigh eleven, in easy style here today by a score of 16 to 0. The Navy has a strong team, and when it looked as if they would not be pressed they made many changes in the line-up.

This was done to save the regulars for the game next Saturday with Harvard. The weather was too warm for football and the players suffered very much from the heat.

PENNSY DEFEATS BROWN TEAM BY SCORE OF 12 TO 0

Quakers' Back Field, Made Up of Subs, Won Their Game in First Half.

THE LINE-UP.

Pennsylvania: ...
Brown: ...

(Special to The Evening World.)

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, Oct. 17.—The Pennsylvania eleven, with its backfield positions held down by substitutes, expected a hard and grueling contest from Brown, and the Quakers started in to tear their rivals' line-up from the jump and scored twelve points in the first half, this being the only score of the game.

The weather was pleasant, but entirely too warm for football. The attendance was large, many of the fairer sex gracing the grandstands and applauding the respective players.

WOMAN GARROTES AND ROBS A MAN NEAR BROADWAY

Son of ex-Commissioner McClave Choked and Beaten on Forty-fourth Street.

Fifty yards from Broadway, and beneath the glare of a three-globed electric, Edmund W. McClave, son of the late John B. McClave, Republican Police Commissioner in the early nineties, when there was a four-headed bipartisan board, was held up, garrotted and robbed by a young and pretty woman on Forty-fourth street at 2 o'clock this morning.

The female footpad, who mauled the young man as if he were a child, was captured two hours after the robbery, and proved to be a woman with a remarkable record for strong-armed robberies.

When taken to Police Headquarters later in the day, her record was found under three names: Nellie Brown, Nellie Brooks and Annie Kelly. She got $18 from her victim's wallet and waistcoat pocket, and had disposed of it before her arrest.

There was certainly no trace of amateurishness in the methods she employed upon young McClave. He had returned from the West yesterday, where he had extensive mining interests, and after having dined with friends at the Astor, was on his way to his home at No. 124 West Forty-fourth street.

He was walking along leisurely, smoking a cigar, when he noticed a young woman coming toward him, moving very slowly and glancing about as if she were bewildered. When the light fell on her face he saw that she was good looking. She wore a tailor-made brown skirt, a white lace waist, a brown jacket that fit her perfectly, a feather boa that fell almost to her feet and a great hat of many plumes.

When she was almost opposite McClave she stopped and said: "I believe I have lost my way. Am I going west or east?"

Her Right Shot Out.

She spoke so demurely that McClave was completely disarmed and started to explain, when the pretty stranger's right arm shot out and gave him the strange hold. With his head thrown back by a powerful grip that almost paralyzed him, his assailant's other hand ripped open his waistcoat, deftly lifted the wallet in the inside pocket, and then went through every pocket with lightning-like rapidity.

In not more than a second she had stripped the pockets bare and then she bent her powerful grip that almost paralyzed him, his assailant's other hand ripped open his waistcoat, deftly lifted the wallet in the inside pocket, and then went through every pocket with lightning-like rapidity.

A crowd collected, but their sympathy went with the woman. The pair was still struggling, when a cab stopped near the curb. The woman broke away and jumped into it. But McClave, who was covered with blood, torn and enraged, rushed upon her again and dragged her from the vehicle.

This time Nellie Brown returned to the attack with a ferocity and strength that overwhelmed McClave. She beat him down into the gutter, kicked him viciously, then darted away, and, jumping into a cab, was driven away at a gallop.

The battle had endured twenty minutes, but no policeman appeared. McClave dragged himself to the Sixth Avenue Branch Detective Bureau and told the robbery. He swore that he would get the woman, if he had to abandon all other business for a week, and furthermore, that he would prosecute her if it took him all winter.

Then with a squad of detectives, the young man made the round of the Tenderloin. Finally the detectives stopped in a Sixth Avenue drug store which is the annual football game today. His four-year-old sister, Ida, was on the roof at the time.
